www.oupjapan.co.jp/ort

オックスフォード・リーディング・ツリー(ORT)とは?

- 英国の約80% (16000校) 以上の小学校で採用されている「国語」の教科書。
- ネイティブの子供たちが使う自然な英語でつづられたユーモアたっぷりの物語。
- 頻繁に使う語彙や表現が繰り返し登場するため、英語学習に最適。
- 合計200冊以上のリーダーが全10レベルに分けられているので、小・中学校だけでなく、高校や大学の多読教材としても大人気。
- 老若男女問わず親しみやすいキャラクターたちがシリーズを通して登場します。

What's the Oxford Reading Tree (ORT)?

- Literacy textbooks used at over 80% of primary schools in the UK (over 16,000 schools).
- Humorous stories with natural-sounding, authentic language native children actually use.
- Repetitive vocabulary and sentence structure ideal for EFL learners.
- Perfect for use in extensive reading programs across elementary schools and junior high schools as the series is graded over 10 stages over 200 titles. It is even used at some high schools and universities here in Japan.
- Cute characters appear throughout the series and children can easily relate to them.

Project X

Graded along the same standards as the ORT and going up to Level 20, the series was specifically researched and written to reach reluctant readers. With a diverse mix of styles and a truly up-to-date feel, the action-packed storylines appeal to girls but especially to boys. For phonics practice, try the Project X CODE or the new Hero Academy series.

Peter and the children flew out of the room and down the river – then out over the sea. They flew for many days and nights. They were hot, then cold, then hot again.

The children couldn't fly fast, and they often hit clouds. Sometimes Peter was bored, so he flew away from them and had adventures. Many times, he nearly forgot about them!

Once, Michael began to sleep. He fell down and down to the sea. Peter watched him and laughed!

Seconds before Michael went into the sea, Peter flew down and caught him.

Holmes smiles. 'That's interesting. But I must work now, and you must leave. Please close the door after you.'

Roylott does not leave. He walks to the chimney and takes the metal poker in his hands. He bends it quickly with his two big hands. Then he throws it down at his feet.

'I'm leaving because I want to leave, not because you tell me!' he cries angrily. 'Be careful, Mr Holmes!'

Then he walks out of the room, looking all the time at Holmes.

'My poor poker,' Holmes says quietly, walking to the chimney. He is not a big man, but he takes the poker and quickly unbends it again. Watson's mouth opens and Holmes begins to laugh.

'I'm not afraid of Roylott, Watson! But I need to know something about his wife's will. I'm going out now.'

4 Global Issues

Population
 In 1950, the world had a population of 2.6 billion people, but today, there are more people than that just in China and India. By 2016, there were 7.5 billion people in the world – and that number was growing by about one million every five days! By 2050, there will probably be about 9.5 billion people on Earth.

The world's population is growing fastest in some of the countries that have the least money. For example, Malawi and Burundi in Africa are two of the countries where the population is growing fastest, but they are also two of the poorest countries in the world. In places like these, it is already difficult for many people to get good food, clean water, and healthcare, and to find a safe home. With bigger populations, these problems may become worse.

Some other countries have the opposite problem: their populations are getting smaller. For example, the population of the Cook Islands, in the Pacific, is falling every year. This is because people are having fewer children than before, and because many are leaving the islands to go to bigger places like New Zealand.

5 A changing world

Populations also fall when countries are at war, and people leave to escape the fighting, or are killed. After a war started in Syria in 2011, millions of people left their homes there, and the population of the country became smaller and smaller.

If a country's population becomes smaller, it can be a problem. For example, shops cannot sell many things, and businesses and universities cannot find enough workers or students.

Another important change in the world's population is that today there are more and more older people. In many parts of the world, healthcare is much better now, so people are living longer. They are having fewer children, too. In Japan, more than a quarter of the population is now over sixty-five, and by 2055, people think that 40% of the Japanese population will be in their late sixties and seventies.

Japan's population is getting older.
