Across
1. a type of alcohol, produced from sugar cane (= the plant from which sugar is made), maize / corn, etc., that is used as an alternative to petrol/gas
3. connected with industries that create products and provide services designed to improve and protect the environment
4. a person’s closest friend
5. a Japanese form of comic strip for boys that usually has a lot of exciting action and adventure
8. a service that allows you to watch television programmes on a computer or a special television after the time when they were originally broadcast
9. if something on a social networking service, news website, blog, etc. receives a like, it means that somebody has shown that they agree with it or think it is good by clicking a special button
10. the action of secretly finding a way of looking at and/or changing information on somebody else’s computer system without permission
11. the possibility that somebody will try to damage or destroy a computer network, computer system or website by secretly changing information on it without permission
12. (also cart, shopping cart both especially North American English) a facility on a website that records the items that you select to buy
13. part of the process of online shopping in which the customer enters delivery information and pays for the item
14. (often in compounds) (used about computer hardware or software) able to be used with many different types of computer systems, software or operating systems

Down
2. a type of energy produced using organic substances that can be replaced naturally, such as wood or vegetable oil
6. a type of software that automatically displays or downloads advertisements on a computer screen, smartphone, etc. when a user is online
7. a type of computer program that tricks a user into buying and downloading unnecessary software that could be dangerous for the computer
10. the action of secretly finding a way of looking at and/or changing information on somebody else’s computer system without permission

(c) Oxford University Press